

Cambridge Muslim College

The Cambridge Muslim College supports the development of training and Islamic scholarship to help meet the many challenges facing Britain today. The College is dedicated to maintaining academic excellence and pushing the boundaries of Islamic learning in the West. Drawing on resources and expertise in Cambridge and beyond, the College's mission is to help translate the many existing strengths of British Muslims into stronger, more dynamic institutions and communities.

The College welcomes Muslims of all backgrounds who wish to deepen their pastoral skills and their awareness of contemporary developments in Britain and the world. It is independent of governments and is not affiliated to any Islamic movement, providing a prayerful context for strengthening da'wa skills and scholarly resources to support all who care about the continuing health and dynamism of Britain's Muslim community.

The College is under the direction of Shaykh Abdal Hakim Murad (T. J. Winter), Shaykh Zayed Lecturer in Islamic Studies in the Faculty of Divinity at the University of Cambridge.

The College is accredited by the British Accreditation Council for Independent Further and Higher Education.
